

For perspectives on today's U.S. cement industry, interview Portland Cement Association's leadership.

Contact: Remi Braden, Director, Media and Public Relations
rbraden@cement.org, (202)235-4163

Mike Ireland, President and Chief Executive Officer

Currently serving in his sixth year as PCA President and CEO, Mike offers timely, big-picture industry perspectives that reflect the opinions and ambitions of U.S. cement manufacturers' leadership. He is also the top advocate for PCA's Roadmap to Carbon Neutrality, which was developed under his leadership.

Ed Sullivan, Chief Economist and Senior V.P. of Market Intelligence

For decades, Ed has been revered as the top economist in the cement, concrete and construction industries. His economic forecasts are widely referred to by organizers of corporate planning efforts, leaders in the financial industry, and national media.

Rick Bohan, Senior V.P., Sustainability

Rick handles all matters related to sustainability for PCA and is an engineer capable of explaining the technology of cement production in layman's terms for general audiences. Rick also speaks effectively to the science behind PCA's Roadmap to Carbon Neutrality.

Sean O'Neill, Senior V.P., Government Affairs

Whether it's policy regarding carbon emissions, rebuilding America's infrastructure, or any legislation being debated on Capitol Hill that could impact the industry- Sean O'Neill can answer your questions. Sean also can address PCA's positions on decisions handed down by the EPA, DOE, and other federal regulators that could affect cement manufacturers.